

ABSTRACT

The present invention is directed toward a method to produce recombinant fusion proteins in large quantities that are both highly homogenous and biologically active. In particular, the invention relates to a method for producing recombinant fusion proteins in a larvae expression system. The recombinant fusion protein is then purified from the larvae by an affinity tag fused to the protein via affinity chromatography.

RECEIVED
U.S. PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE